1918 newspaper clipping confirms time traveler's death, say scientists

by JANE FOSTER, Weekly World News

The recent discovery of a 78-year-old newspaper clipping provides grim proof that attempts at time travel are extraordinarily dangerous, embarrassed government experts admit.

The Feb. 28, 1918 article from the long-defunct New York Police Courier, includes a photo of a corpse squeezed into a cylinder, along with the headline "Mystery Man Found Dead in 2-foot-long 'Space Tube'."

Incredibly, beside the cylinder lies a communications device resembling a cellular phone — a device that would not be invented until decades later!

"We have identified the cylinder as one of ours," confirms an insider at the U.S. Government's Temporal Transmission Research Project (TTRP).

"The man inside is almost certainly Dr. Richard Mason Perel, a Soviet scientist who volunteered to be our first human subject. Two months ago we attempted to send him back to 1918 — and we have been trying to retrieve him ever since."

The ultra-secret TTRP project, based in Cambridge, Mass., involves the concerted efforts of scientists recruited from the nation's top universities, including Harvard, MIT and Cal Tech.

Although the technology is highly classified, the insider reveals it requires "accelerating matter to faster-than-light speeds."

In early 1995, researchers were able to send a laboratory rat one month into the past and retrieve it, claims the insider.

But it was determined this year a human observer was required.

"Dr. Perel was supposed to spend just 24 minutes in the year 1913 and then throw a switch allowing him to return. When he failed to do so, we made every effort to track him down."

TTRP historical researchers pored over newspapers from that era hoping to find a report of a dazed "man from the future."

Instead, to their dismay, they found the tragic story about the unidentified body found in a mysterious metal tube.

"Originally the cylinder was air-tight and sealed," explains the TTRP insider.

"We believe that in transmitting Dr. Perel through time, the tube and the matter contained in it somehow became

Texas gal can stick three pool balls in her mouth — at one time!

By JOE BERGER | Weekly World News

HOUSTON — Amazing Marisa DeMatha is a super pool player, but the dynamite miss does more than wield a mean cue stick — she's also the only woman in the world who can shove three pool balls into her mouth without batting an eye!

"My mom says it's not very ladylike to go around chomping on three pool balls at the same time, but I tell her when you've got a mouth the size of Mississippi, you might as well put it to good use," laughs mischievous Marisa, 20.

"And believe me, I've always had a big mouth. When I was a little girl and the dentist told me to open wide, he was always shocked at how wide I could open."

The curvy college sophomore has been hanging out in pool halls with her deadeye dad since she was a first-grader and got her own monogrammed, custom-made cue for Christmas when she was barely 10. So, with all that eight-ball experience under her belt, it's not surprising that the sharpshooting cutie is the star of her Thursday night ladies' league.

But it isn't mighty-mouth Marisa's ability with the stick that has folks flocking from miles around to watch her play.

"Every Thursday night we've got a couple of hundred people hanging around our table — but trust me, they're not there for the pool game," said the livewire lady.

"All they want to do is see me stuff pool balls in my mouth until I look like a greedy chipmunk, and then they just go wild. And if I don't do it for them two or three times a night, they act like I've failed them completely.

"All I can say is, it sure doesn't take much to keep some people entertained."

Remarkably, Marisa discovered her attention-getting talent one night as she puttered around the pool hall with her pals, waiting for league action to get underway.

"One of the guys was showing off and put an eight ball in his mouth, then tried to shove a second ball in and almost broke his jaw," she recalled.

"So I laughed and said, 'Here, let me show you,' and I shoved two balls into my mouth easy as pie.

"Everybody was gaping like they couldn't believe their eyes and suddenly I realized I had some room left, so I popped a third ball into my mouth — and man, they really went crazy.

"So now my fate is sealed. I could go on to become a brain surgeon or a rocket scientist or what-

Big brother computer is watching you!

Those hot-to-trot computer owners who love to talk dirty on the Internet are in for the shock of their lives — because their steamy "private" chats are being monitored all the time!

WATCH OUT! Everything you say on the Internet is being monitored and recorded by the CIA.

CIA SECRETLY TAPING ON-LINE CHATS!

In an ultra-secret operation, the CIA is recording every single word typed into cyberspace, an agency insider admits.

"The government decided in the late 1980s that it would be vital for national security to keep track of computer-to-computer messaging or e-mail," revealed the insider.

"Our officials felt this was a necessary step to keep terrorists, hate groups and foreign agents from using the Information Superhighway to harm America's interests.

"The monitoring system has been a tremendous success.

"Unfortunately, the downside is that ordinary citizens are, totally without their knowledge, being spied on as they pour out their most intimate thoughts and fantasies."

In recent years, more and more Americans have purchased personal computers and begun to explore the Internet — a vast network connecting computers through the phone lines.

Many love to visit the countless "chat rooms" on the net, sites where individuals can communicate by typing in words on their computer keyboard.

Some especially love to go into private chat areas, where they engage in one-on-one conversations — many of which descend into raunchy verbal "cybersex."

Normally shy individuals ranging from housewives to accountants find themselves using salty language that would make a sailor blush.

"Many of these computer users are married, but they consider these activities to be harmless flirtation with no possible consequences — because they assume that no one is listening in," said the insider.

"But the reality is that every naughty word has been recorded on high-density disks, played by the Agency."

The chat rooms are regularly scanned by agents for key words such as "bomb," "murder" or "drugs," explained the insider.

"But sometimes bored agents listen in on regular people. They get quite a chuckle as couples get into hot and heavy chats."

No action is taken unless agents uncover illegal activity.

"However," said the insider, "there's no question that if the content of our disks were ever made public, people's reaction would find out the truth and thousands of marriages in America would be destroyed."

You can use your storehouse of happy memories to chase away the blues — and bring the sun back into your life!

"When people are depressed, they think, 'It's no use struggling because I'm beaten already,'" said psychiatrist Dr. Anthony Pietropinto.

USE NICE MEMORIES TO CHASE AWAY THE BLUES

. . . say top psychiatrists!

"Well, by looking back you can remember times when you were on top, when you felt great and were able to handle problems. It gives you the will to tackle your present problems.

"And if you're particularly tense, think back to a very relaxing nature scene. Lakes, snow-covered valleys and corn swaying in the breeze are especially relaxing. Think back to the last time you watched the ripples on a lake or snow softly falling.

"If you're feeling frustrated at work, remember the last time you got a pat on the back. Recall the pleasure of a successful period. This will cheer you up and make you see that life has hills as well as valleys.

"If you're having trouble in a love relationship, cast your mind back to the days when things were better.

"Think of a particular day when you both had a terrific time. You can be happy with each other like that again — but first you have to get rid of the blahs, because grouches aren't very lovable."

Psychiatrist Dr. William Fry noted that much of our waking life is spent in memories, fantasies and daydreams. He said that in talks with survivors of Nazi concentration camps, he found they had developed "a remarkable capacity to hold onto pleasant memories, which relieved the torment of their lives."

To help you jog old memories, Dr. Pietropinto suggests you read old diaries, listen to old records, watch old movies or mix a favorite exotic drink like a mai tai or pina colada, which will help you conjure up past times when you were happier.

HOW TO STOP WISHING YOU WERE RICH — AND BE HAPPY

By JENNIFER BROOKES / Weekly World News

ENVIOUS of this wealthy, champagne-guzzling beauty? Don't waste your time!

Many tycoons lead sad, lonely lives, say experts

Okay, so you aren't rich. You don't have a yacht moored in Monte Carlo or a chalet in the Swiss Alps.

Stop wishing you were wealthy — and be happy with what you have.

Being rich isn't all it's cracked up to be, says psychologist Philip Slater.

"It isn't possible to devote your life to making money and be really happy," he says. "Wealthy businessmen may appear to be content but they are bolstering their egos every day. If you look at their private lives, they're pretty joyless."

The author of Wealth Addiction said that money might provide pleasure, but it's a little like gobbling down empty calories.

"Money distracts people from things that are really rewarding and nourishing," he said. "The more you pursue money, the less happy you are."

So stop dreaming about riches and get happy — following these tips from psychiatrist Dr. H. L. Newbold:

● Look at money as if it were a supply of oxygen. "You need it to live, but too much of it can present problems just as surely as too little," Dr. Newbold said.

● Learn to distinguish between wealth and success. "High achievement doesn't necessarily go hand in hand with riches," he said. "Some of the best-known figures in history lived frugal but contented lives. Gandhi and Lincoln were not rich, but they enjoyed life and had a far greater impact than any Texas millionaire."

● Remember, no matter how much you love money, it's a one-way street.

"Money doesn't kiss you goodnight, send you a birthday card or laugh and joke with you," the psychiatrist said. "But your love of money could deprive you of these things."

● Learn to disregard what you simply can't afford and be happy that you're not saddled with the responsibilities of owning big luxury items.

● Think about what you need and not about what you want. "Forget about advertising supplements, catalogs and TV commercials," Dr. Newbold said. "They are designed to make somebody else rich by persuading you to spend money on non-essential items."

● Find new enjoyment in being self-sufficient.

"Making your own furniture or growing your own vegetables provides far more satisfaction than a trip to the store," he said.

New study reveals: Men gossip more than women!

It's a myth that women gossip more than men, a new study reveals.

In fact, men gossip just as much as women. What's more, they gossip about the same things as women — and their remarks are every bit as catty as the ladies' are.

"The great myth that has survived from generation to generation since the 18th century branding women as notorious gossipers has finally been put to rest," declared Dr. Jack Levin, a sociologist who did the first study ever on the subject.

Over a 10-week period, 76 male and 110 female students were observed in a lounge at Northeastern University in Boston.

"Our results showed that both male and female gossip contained 27 percent positive gossip and 25 percent negative," said Dr. Levin. "Both men and women focused about 16 percent of their conversations on sex and both devoted 12 percent to personal attractiveness of people they knew."

The only limit to our realization of tomorrow will be our doubts of today.

EDGAR CAYCE • JESUS CHRIST • BILLY

By PETER SMITH / Weekly World News

WASHINGTON — Human history is winding down and will actually come to an end within the next four years, prophets, seers and holy men as diverse as Edgar Cayce, Nostradamus, Dr. Billy Graham and Jesus Christ have warned in writings and commentary spanning almost 2,000 years!

"Make no mistake. The actual dates might vary. But these prophets and seers agree that human history has run its course and that the world will indeed end within the next four years," declared Peter Rachele, Australian author of the frightening but important new book, The Final Prophecies.

"This doesn't bode well for mankind, of course, but that's certainly no reason to stick your head in the sand and hide.

"These prophecies, if you choose to believe them, can help you prepare for the end, whether that means getting right with God or running wild in the streets with no regard for a tomorrow that, quite frankly, isn't going to come.

"In that regard, all of us face deep and crucial moral and ethical decisions. How will we approach the end — with faith and dignity or as wild animals? That is for each of us to decide."

Rachele's book is controversial to say the least, but he not only refuses to enter the debate, he offers up hardly any defense against his many critics.

"I didn't write this book to win a popularity contest — I wrote it to warn mankind of impending doom after studying the writings and commentary of the greatest prophets the world has ever known," explained Rachele.

"As for the accuracy of my work, I can only say that if you don't believe me, go to my sources — the Bible is one of them — and see for yourself."

Selections from Rachele's book follow on these pages. References to the Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse in Dr. Billy Graham's segment refer to the symbolic harbingers of death and destruction in the Bible's book of Revelation.

NOSTRADAMUS: The famed 16th-century seer, perhaps the greatest psychic the world has ever known, flatly stated that the world would end in a nuclear holocaust on Dec. 21, 1999 or Jan. 13, 2000, depending on who is interpreting the prophecy.

Included in his book Centuries and in independent predictions that have been discovered and attributed to him over the years, the prophecy is grim indeed — with no hint of anything other than "the ultimate holocaust" occurring in human history.

He did not envision the advent of Heaven on Earth after the Apocalypse as did other prophets.

In his bleak view of events to come, a world war of unimaginable horror will erupt and rage until every human being on Earth is dead. And unlike other seers and prophets, Nostradamus didn't bother to confirm or even address Bible prophecy that foretold the return of a Messiah after the Apocalypse.

The seer's final prophecy merely stated that the world would end horribly in a complete and "cleansing fire" that would not only consume the planet, but everyone and everything on it.

Most scholars agree that the fire will be nuclear and refers to a nuclear war. Others, who are clearly in the minority, believe Nostradamus is really foretelling the collision of Earth with a massive, world-destroying comet. But they agree on the end result, which is annihilation of the planet.

DR. BILLY GRAHAM: In testimony, preaching and books, especially his classic Approaching Hoofbeats: The Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse, Dr. Graham has repeatedly stated that he believes we are living in the End Times.

But his message and belief is ultimately hopeful and joyous, because he is convinced that following the horrors of misery, famine, death and despair leading up to the final apocalyptic battle between good and evil, Christ will return to Earth and establish Paradise for true believers everywhere.

"Virtually everything has been fulfilled that was prophesied in the Scriptures leading up to the coming of Christ. We know His coming is near," Dr. Graham stated in Approaching Hoofbeats.

"But for the Christian believer, the return of Christ is comforting, for at least men and women of faith will be reunited.

"They will be avenged. The non-believer will see and understand why true Christians marched to the sound of another drum. But for the sinful unbeliever, the triumphant return of Christ will prove disastrous — for Christ's return ensures final judgment.

"I have become more deeply aware of the enormous problems that face our world today, and the dangerous trends which seem to be leading our world to the brink of Armageddon.

"I hear the approaching distant horsemen," he continued. "I hear their warnings and have no choice but to deliver them."

EDGAR CAYCE: The 20th century's foremost psychic foresaw horror and heartache for mankind and the world as we approach the year 2000 — beginning with devastating earthquakes, world war and holocaust, global epidemics, famine and finally, the end of life as we have known it.

REVEALED: Exact date world will END!

Like Dr. Billy Graham and Christ himself, however, the news from Cayce isn't all bad. In a series of predictions that were kept secret until 1965, he foresaw the return of Christ shortly after the world ends in apocalyptic warfare on Dec. 31, 1999.

And he believed that Christ would usher in a era of perfect peace, happiness and love just as the Bible promises.

After a series of devastating earthquakes, said Cayce, world drought and horrifying epidemics will kill hundreds of millions of people, and a massive hole in the ozone layer will open up over Europe, causing a terrifying and unprecedented plague of skin cancer, killing many millions more.

In 1998, continued the seer, Iraqi madman Saddam Hussein attacks Israel with nuclear missiles, prompting U.S. intervention and the beginning of World War III.

During this war, a powerful and evil alliance led by Red China defeats a Western alliance led by the U.S.

In the fulfillment of Bible prophecy, a Chinese Anti-Christ identified as Min Lee forces people to forsake religion and wear the "mark of the beast," the evil number 666, on their hands.

On Dec. 31, 1999, the world ends. Within minutes, Christ returns to Earth — creating Heaven on Earth, Cayce said.

CHRIST: Most people think Jesus Christ merely hinted about the end of the world when, in fact, he was astonishingly specific — and indirectly named the year, 1998!

In the Bible itself, Matthew 24:4, Christ was quoted as having said:

"This gospel of the kingdom will be preached in the whole world as a testimony to all nations — and then the end will come."

That puts mankind well into the End Times, because for the first and only time in history, the gospel is being preached on a global scale via radio, television and print media.

Less than a year ago, Dr. Billy Graham preached to every nation on Earth simultaneously via satellite, potentially bringing the Word of God to every every man, woman and child with access to a radio or television.

And that's not all. The discovery of an ancient scroll that contained what scholars believe to be the secret prophecies of Christ is even more specific than that.

The scroll speaks of the "rise of Satan in the West," a reference that suggests America will be home to an evil Anti-Christ who will oversee the genocide of Christians and touch off world war before Christ returns to Earth.

The prophecy dates the war as occurring during the "sunset of the second millennium," which most scholars believe is a clear reference to the year 1998.

As the Bible points out, Christ will eventually establish Paradise — the Kingdom of God — on Earth and reign over a perfect world for eternity.

CONS LOVE TODAY'S TOUGH NEW PRISONS

Tough new prison regulations designed to make convicts' lives a living hell have backfired, a surprising new study reveals.

By GEORGE SANFORD
Weekly World News

"Taking away privileges such as smoking, cable TV and personal pastimes have actually made prisoners healthier and happier, according to a recent report by the Corrections Research Council, a non-partisan Washington-based watchdog group.

"I feel and look a hell of a lot better now," a convicted murderer who used to smoke three packs a day told the researchers. "I don't wake up in the morning hacking anymore.

"And without the distraction of TV, I have the time to read and improve my mind. I've finally got the chance to take a few words of advice from Jane Austen and the Bronte sisters."

The experts interviewed 1,200 inmates in Texas and Nebraska, states which tough new prison laws have been adopted.

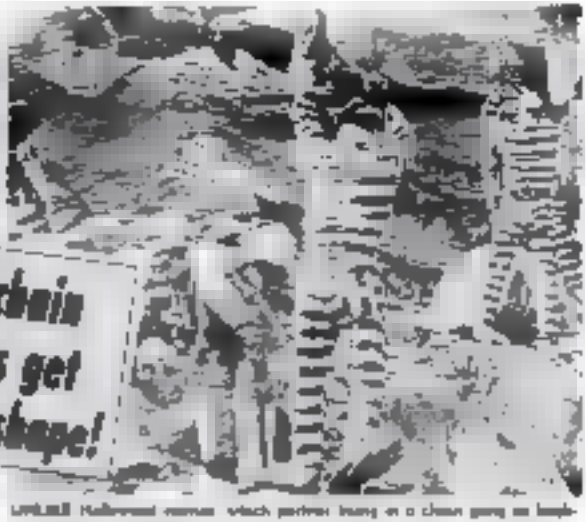
"We found that the vast majority of prisoners don't feel the deserve anything and chief investigator Rick Lawson. "The message taking their cable TV and pay-per-view has been a huge, almost 70 percent of the inmates we surveyed say they feel less nervousness and more relaxed without drinking coffee every day."

Forbidding prisoners from receiving gifts explains how one study of them happened, the experts found that just giving an eight-year sentence just didn't seem harsh enough. We often moved men from a seventy 12d pounds to a burly old.

"We told us, 'I would never have had the discipline to exercise this much. I sure as heck won't have to do it [illegible]!'"

Victims' rights advocates are outraged by the report and are lobbying the California Legislature to adopt a policy of allowing prisoners to have coffee, cigarettes, porn and cable TV - so that they can become literary, career-driven underworld fourth [illegible]. Said the leader of the group, "There's no reason why violent criminals should enjoy the benefits of a healthy lifestyle."

. . . because chain gang workouts get them into super shape!



LIFELIKE! Hollywood makeup artists perfect injury on a chain gang as hard-breaking work, today's prisoners have no incentive needs to keep in shape.

NOTEWORTHY. Texas Tech Robert Lawson compiled data for the study.

HOLLYWOOD'S ANSWER GIRL

Q I really love Oscar winning actress Mary Stavin, especially in super-sexy roles like the hooker she played in Woody Allen's Mighty Aphrodite and enjoy Marilyn Monroe in HBO's Norma Jean & Marilyn.

Is she sort of a "class" girl in real life too?

— Bill J., Fort Worth, Texas

A Not a bit. Paul Bartina's gorgeous daughter is such a devout Christian, she's refused to move in with her director boyfriend until they tie the knot.

In fact, the Hollywood good girl told a French magazine, "I've never kissed a boy on a first date!"

SEE ONLY FOR sat. night! Mary Stavin

Q I really loved that new terrorist action flick, The Rock. But is it true that Sean Connery's co-star Nicolas Cage once attempted to hijack a plane himself?

— Hattie L., Syracuse, N.Y.

A Not exactly, but the impetuous actor admits he did get "carried away" on a flight one time. "I didn't think that the FA student was connected to the entire air plane, and I said into it that I was the cap tain and the plane was losing altitude and I couldn't land it," he confessed with a wry smile. "I got records and a movie deal."

Q I am absolutely convinced that an alien invasion of Earth is imminent and I am thankful that this threat is being highlighted in the sci-fi blockbuster, Independence Day. Do the stars of the movie believe, as I do, that UFOs are real?

— Gina B., Trenton, N.J.

A Will Smith, who plays an alien sleeping Marine in the flying saucer flick, is a fellow true believer. "I have friends who say they've been abducted. They have weird marks on their bodies and that kind of stuff," he revealed. "The government is definitely covering things up . . . and rightfully so. People would go crazy if they knew the truth."

Q As a red-blooded American male, I just love it when dude stars have their fans to movies. Who, in your professional opinion, has the best butt in Hollywood?

— James K., Muncie, Ind.

A I'll have to vote for my boyfriend. But the folks at People magazine picked a bunch of personal trainers who worked on the Lean Buns Abs home fanatics on the greatest asses in the universe. Every time I turned a page, I came across a perfect derriere. Even Steven's sidekick on the Fresh Prince sitcom, who originated the role, flatly refuse to appear."

BOGOTA, Colombia — Clever accountant Luis Camargo seduced scores of gullible gals — by dressing up in a shiny green costume and convincing them he was a space alien!

CONVICTED RAPIST Luis Camargo

The cosmic con artist was arrested in June and convicted of statutory rape after the parents of a 14-year-old girl complained he had promised the teen a trip in his spaceship if she had sex with him. But for several years before that, he had preyed upon the young — and the stupid — to enjoy their sexual favors, police say.

"He was just so cute," said 25-year-old secretary Andrea Duranc, a typical victim.

"He was all green and everything and I was just so excited to be with a real space sentenced to up to 20 years in prison according to police.

He had girlfriends of all ages, but he really scored with the naive ones and the really dumb ones because they were the most likely to believe his story," said police detective Ignacio de Lauria.

"They honestly thought that if they pleased him, he would take them on trips to distant planets."

Camargo in real life was a lonely bachelor who had trouble hooking girls. In desperation, he had thought up the idea of finding women into being his lovers.

I'm madder than a dentist with a dent in his Porsche over the sneaky Russkies' latest poppycock scheme to make us think they're really friendly folks who long to be as American as apple pie.

First the little weasels spread the word that their hushed pedicures Boris Yeltsin and Viktoria Zaydnaya are big country music fans who can't get enough of Merle Haggard, Reba McEntire and our newest sensation, little LeAnn Rimes.

WHAT YOU SHOULD EAT — WHEN — TO FEEL LIKE A MILLION

You'll be full of get-up-and-go after a breakfast of steak and eggs — and you'll fall asleep more easily following a pasta dinner.

"Eating the right foods at the right time of the day will lead to good health, more enduring energy during the day and quieter restlessness at night," says Dr. Charles Ehret.

In the morning, your body releases certain hormones that make you alert and energetic in the afternoon.

And since protein stimulates the release of adrenalines and these hormones, your body needs a high-protein breakfast to function at its peak. The ideal high-protein breakfast is lean steak and eggs.

Other very good sources of protein are yogurt, wild nuts, cheeses and even beans.

For lunch, Dr. Ehret recommends the same high-protein regimen. Both meals should total about two-thirds of your daily protein allotment.

One or two glasses of wine for breakfast and even soup bread at lunch would be a good source of carbohydrates.

Later in the day, the body releases serotonin, which prepares it for the relaxation needed for sleep.

Since carbohydrates stimulate the release of serotonin, your dinner should be high in carbohydrates — such as potatoes or pasta. But your evening meal should include little or no red meat.

Coffee, tea or cocoa will set the alarm on your body clock ringing at any time of the day except 4 p.m., which is the traditional "tea-time." The reason for this is at that time of day the body's adrenaline is at its peak and it neutralizes the effect of the beverages.

Incredibly, Nicole's parents are pleased with their daughter's new baby. They admit they were surprised when the second grader turned up pregnant, but not unhappy because they wanted to see their family grow.

The understanding parents have even known the baby's father 11-year-old Randy Ayers, for many years. In fact, they will be glad Nicole and her sweetie get married. He had been living with his mother and five sisters and brothers, but now Sam has his own room in the Hamaro home.

Doctors say the girl has a hormonal disorder that caused her reproductive system to mature years earlier than usual. Her doctor reassured her parents recently that Nicole's condition was not dangerous.

Nicole's baby was born after a breakfast in bed. Nicole's mother has taught her how to change and dress her baby, feed her and perform all the necessary chores.

"The first thing I do when I get home from school is take Aimee on a walk," said Nicole.

"When I push the stroller everyone stops to look at her. I'm the only kid in my neighborhood with a real live baby."

People who dislike their cars are more likely to become involved in auto accidents, nationally known psychiatrist Dr. Sheldon Zigelbaum said.

"I've found that an overlooked psychological factor contributing to auto accidents is the driver's dislike for his car," he said.

"Over the past 10 years I've kept track of hundreds of patients involved in accidents and discovered that in more than half the cases these people were harboring a deep dissatisfaction with their automobiles."

People, Dr. Zigelbaum observed, gradually find a way of getting rid of something they dislike.

"A man who feels obliged to wear a Christmas tie," he said, "will 'accidentally' stain it with gravy.

"It's quite common for a woman who would prefer a new set of dishes to chase pie tins to begin chipping and breaking the old ones.

"But in neither instance does the person consciously realize what they are doing.

"Quite often, people with purchase lemon cars they think they can learn to live with but they wince every time they look at the horror.

Housewife Tina O'Neill is suing her husband Frank — for sexual harassment!

The New Orleans, La., mother of two says she can't take any more of his pinching and leering, and she figures a lawsuit is the only way she can make her point with him.

"I'm at my wits' end," said Mrs. O'Neil, an attractive blonde. "I mean, I can't even wash dishes without him grabbing me from behind."

But Mrs. O'Neil, 34, said her husband's obsession with sex goes beyond his constant hands-on treatment of her.

"Any time I use the VCR, I find these terrible porno movies in it. And the house is littered with all kinds of sex magazines and posters of naked women in all kinds of disgusting poses. It gets to the point that the thought of sex makes me sick."

Mrs. O'Neil says she loves her husband and is desperate to save the marriage. But he won't pay any attention to her complaints, so she began taking him to court with leaflets in a lawsuit.

"If the judge forces Frank to pay me big bucks it would get his attention. He might be afraid the money would dry up, and the family bet at least Frank would get an official notice that he has a problem.

"When we first got married I knew Frank was a little oversexed, but I figure he would calm down after a few weeks," she said. "Instead his sexual obsession has just gotten worse and worse."

In court papers Mrs. O'Neil said the problem is so bad she can't even change clothes or treat her husband.

"He'd be all over me the second I lifted my shirt," she said.

So after 12 years of marriage pestering, Mrs. O'Neil finally decided to take a drastic step but, "I'm afraid this is the only chance I have to save my marriage."

Mr. O'Neil refused to comment on the suit but reported he has retained a lawyer of his own.

The feuding couple is still living in the same house, Mrs. O'Neil said.

"I'm not asking for a divorce or there's no reason for us to separate," she said. "Once Frank gives up his sexual pestings I'm sure we'll have a long, happy marriage."

No-good shrink took all my money — and I'm still crazy!

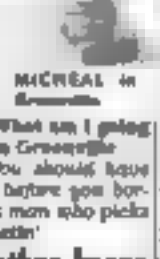
Dear Dotti: I've been in therapy with a psychiatrist for the better part of two years while trying to get a better grip on who I really am. But I'll be stopping soon because I don't have any insurance and I'm just about broke from paying his fees. Unfortunately, I'm not a whole lot better off than when I started therapy. After two years, it seems like I should be much better off. Do you agree? — Terri in Memphis

TERRI in Memphis.

Dear Terri: If shrinks don't think why do they take money from crazy people? The bottom line? You've been had!

Loan shark'll kill me if I don't pay up!

Dear Dotti: My life has been a living hell ever since I borrowed a couple of thousand dollars from a friend of a guy I work with. When I asked for the money, he was very kind and considerate. And he seemed perfectly happy when I said I would pay back all the money with interest within four months. He even slipped me a little extra to finance a night on the town. When my first month's payment came due yesterday, I was expecting to pay him $600 — which after four months would amount to $2,400. My original $2,000 plus loan interest. But he had different ideas, and threatened to kill me if I didn't fork over $2,000 by the end of the week. And in addition, he wants $2,000 a month for the next four months. This is crazy, Dotti, but I'm scared. What am I going to do? — Michael in Greenville

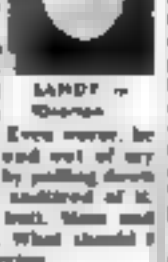


MICHEAL in Greenville.

Dear Michael: You should have thought about that before you borrowed $2,000 from a man who picks his teeth with a stiletto!

Stupid kid brother keeps flashing my friends!

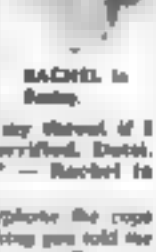
Dear Dotti: I'm a 13-year-old girl who has a 10-year-old little brother. Because both our parents work, I always have to baby sit for him. And as soon as my friends come over he goes absolutely wild. He runs around like a little monkey cracking dirty jokes and generally making a nuisance of himself. Even worse, he enjoys barging in and out of my room and flushing me by pulling down his pants. I'm sick and tired of it, Dotti. If I tell his butt, Mom and Dad will beat mine. What should I do? — Sandy in Riverton



SANDY in Riverton.

Dear Sandy: The solution to your problem is as plain as the nose on your face. Just get yourself a BAD case of diarrhea — and rub that little flasher where it hurts!

Son worships Satan — &



RACHEL in Reading.

if gals are so smart, why do men rule the world?

Dear Dotti: Telephone the cops and tell them everything you told me before they call a cab, chop your head off — and stuff YOU under his bed!

Dear Rachel: I don't know what to tell you. Maybe you should have a talk with your boss. Maybe he's been changing on you for YEARS!

Dear Guilty Teen in Suburbia: The vast majority of 15-year-old boys "take the ball by the horns." If you don't believe me, ask your mom!

Dear Loving You in Allentown: You and every other human on the planet. Now get out of here!

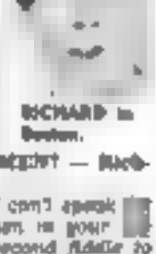
Dear Baffled Bride in Jamestown: If I've told you once, I've told you gazillions of times: The way to a man's heart is NOT through his stomach — and anyone who thinks it is is brain-damaged!

Dear Dotti: My husband used to be a disciplined kind of headset child. But all that changed about six months ago when suddenly he announced he had decided to start wearing Satan slipping Satan shoes that day he has grown his hair long, dropped out of school and started using drugs. I found a drug pipe hidden under the bed in his room and I don't think that is all he has sacrificed. I desperately need to talk to somebody about how to cope with him but he threatened to slit my throat if I say a word. I'm terrified, Dotti. What should I do? — Rachel in Reading

Dear Rachel: Telephone the cops and tell them everything you told me before they call a cab, chop your head off — and stuff YOU under his bed!

If gals are so smart, why do men rule the world?

Dear Dotti: My wife has a habit that drives me crazy. Whenever I'm talking to her she almost always gives me all the answers before I've even finished my sentence. Sometimes she even finishes my sentences for me. I've tried to tell her that it's very annoying, but she doesn't seem to get the message. Can you help me? — Richard in Boston



RICHARD in Boston.

Dear Richard: I can't speak for the so-called women in your life, but I don't play second fiddle to ANYBODY! The men I know wait on me hand and foot. And if you and I happened to wind up in the same room, you'd shut your stupid mouth — boy-oh-boy before me — and wait on me, too!

Does Cuba have missiles pointed at the U.S.?

Dear Serena: I'm a 15-year-old high school student who is really worried. For more than two months I've been having a terrible dream that the United States is going to be attacked by Cuba.

In my dream I see Fidel Castro personally launching missiles that explode all over our country and kill millions of innocent people. This really has me worried so I decided to write to you to find out the truth — and maybe you can even notify the proper authorities so we can head off a potentially dangerous situation. — Worried Student in Mooning

Dear Worried Student: Thank you very much for writing to me with your concerns. For several months I have been looking into the dangerous situation that is ongoing in Cuba and I am continuously advising top government officials of my findings. They have taken steps to make sure the situation doesn't escalate. I will continue to use all my powers to monitor the situation and keep officials up to date on whatever threats I detect.

Dear Serena: A guy who lives down the street from me wants to sell me his car, but actually he wants to make a deal where I agree to make the loan payments over the next three years and pay him $1,000. It seems like a pretty good deal to me but he won't let me drive the car, so I'm afraid it might have problems he's not telling me about. Please look into your crystal ball and tell me if I should make the deal. — Uncertain in Jackson

Dear Uncertain: The car is actually in better shape than he thinks it is — just adding transmission fluid will take care of the problem he's worried about. But before you make this deal consider this: Your friend will be moving to a new home nearly 30 miles from you in 1998 — and that could cause a hardship for you if you still have to make his loan for him. Address that possibility now so you won't have a problem later.

"It Really Works!"

My 7 sons are gay — and I'm PROUD of 'em!

Wanda Sullivan

By SEN SHARPTON

DALLAS, Texas — Loving mom Wanda Sullivan gave birth to seven happy healthy boys, who all grew up to be gay — and she's damn proud of it!

"They began to change their attitude toward boys shortly before junior high. At first it was a jolt but now I think them [all] perfect," said the devoted 51-year-old mother.

"We've gone through hell together. They have been teased, taunted and beaten more times than I can count and then never helped back.

"Bullies have stolen their lunch money, tossed their books in the mud and rubbed their faces in the dirt. More than once they've come home bruised, cuts bowing their eyes and bandages.

The youngest of her gay brood is Josh, 17. The oldest is Mark, 32. In between are Richard, 19, Samuel, 28, Sean, 24, Mark 26 and Barry, 30.

Wanda said she can't figure out why her sons grew up to be homosexual, especially since their father is a skirt chaser who has romantic dreams of widows and married three times since he left her in 1978.

"Growing up hasn't been easy for my boys," she continued. "They really know what growing pains are. Before the day they were born, they've been extremely sensitive.

Most parents pray their son doesn't accidentally get a girl pregnant. I've always prayed they would," she said.

Despite their feminine ways, Wanda loves her boys and is proud as any mother could be. "They have good hearts and are good to me," she said.

Her oldest son is a hairdresser who is teaching his youngest brother the same trade. Two of her sons are in college, one is a waiter and one is pursuing an acting career and her second oldest is an airline flight attendant.

I guess it is God's will they turned out to be gay," Wanda said. "They're mine and I love them. Sometimes, though, I lie awake at night wondering what it would be like to be a grandma."

New brain surgery turns gutless cowards into . . . SUPERMEN!

By KEVIN CRIED / Weekly World News

STOCKHOLM, Sweden — An innovative new brain operation is turning cowardly wimps into fearless heroes overnight.

And the procedure could be available in the U.S. by late 1996! The operation, pioneered and developed by famed neurosurgeon Dr. Lars Norlen, involves removing a small section of the amygdaloid nucleus — the part of the brain in the temporal lobe that regulates fear.

Dr. Norlen has successfully performed 130 of the operations since May and now has a yearlong waiting list.

One patient, a former bank banger for a Swedish motorcycle club, gave up his job and joined the fire department after his surgery.

"I used to live my whole life in fear," he says. "I couldn't even light a cigarette for fear of being burned.

"Now I live to fight fires. Facing the danger excites me."

Dr. Norlen, 63, spent a decade on research and laboratory testing before he got the green light from the Swedish government.

"For years, lack of character and cowardly behavior were considered moral weaknesses," he says.

"Nothing could be further from the truth. The inability to get properly aroused when situations call for it is directly traced to an area of tissue in the mass of gray matter right there at the tail of the caudate nucleus — the amygdaloid."

Dr. Norlen reached his startling conclusion after studying the brains of hundreds of French and Italian soldiers convicted of desertion in wartime. He then compared them with the brains of soldiers decorated for heroism.

"The results were exactly what," he says.

"The amygdaloid nuclei of the cowards were 34 percent larger than those of the heroes."

Dr. Norlen began performing the operation on lab rats seven years ago, gathering his research, then graduated to humans.

He's now in the process of sharing his techniques with other doctors but warns that the operation can be dangerous.

"It's vital not to remove too much tissue or the patient could become overly fearless," he says.

"If they're in a hurry, they could walk out in front of a truck or jump off a high building just to get where they want to go faster."

The AMA has refused comment on when the surgery will be available here. But one insider, speaking off the record, says it will start being performed in American hospitals by December.

SPINELESS wimps can be turned into superheroes by having the fear center of the brain snipped.

AFRICAN TRIBE CAN GROW NEW ARMS AND LEGS!

CAPE TOWN, South Africa — Doctors are baffled by the Mandala — a tribe whose members have the uncanny ability to grow back missing arms and legs!

Over the past 30 years researchers have documented 17 cases of Mandalas who have had limbs cut off in accidents and amputations and grown new ones.

"We have no idea if it's genetic or hereditary or simple coincidence," says Dr. Glen Hoffman, a leading researcher. "But the fact that some of the tribe members have had limbs regrow is undeniable."

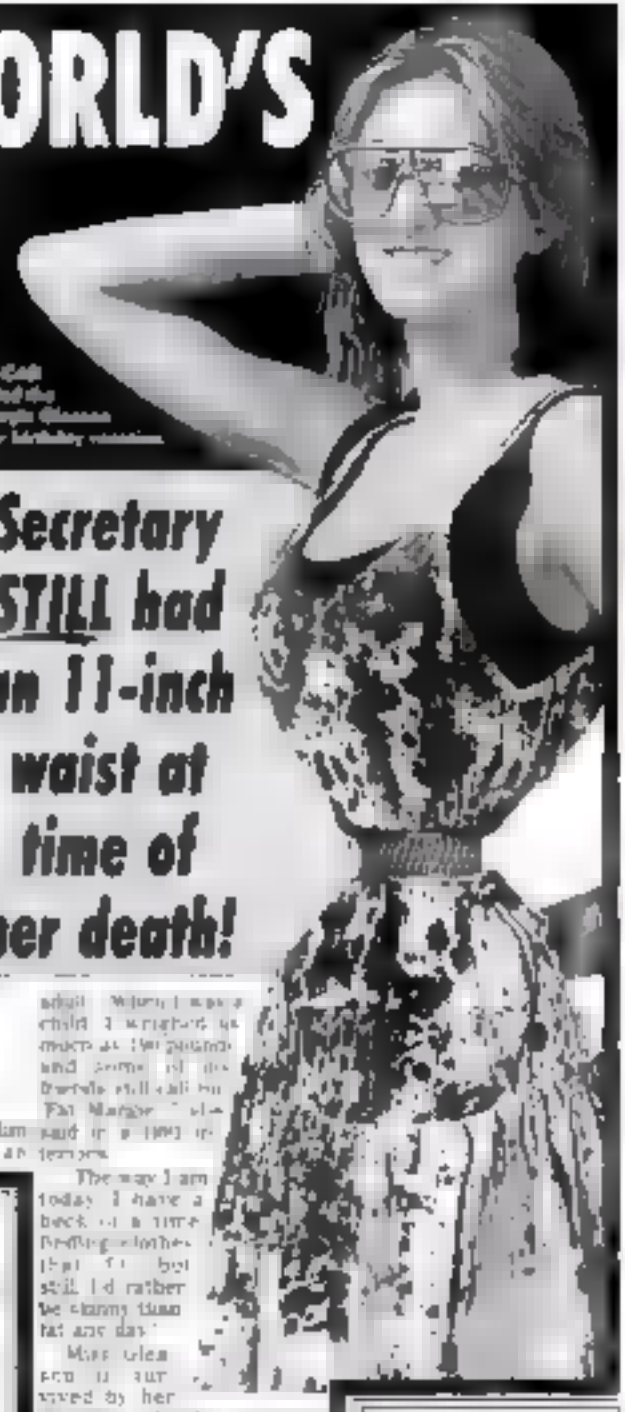
Hoffman says the Mandala have a unique diet that includes a rare fruit found only in the tribe's region.

"We're trying to isolate the chemical in the fruit that causes the regrowth," he says. "If we can, we may be able to help thousands of people who have lost limbs in accidents or war."

Hoffman says the Mandala have no explanation for the phenomenon.

"They've been doing it for as long as they can remember," he says. "They've never had a reason to question it."

WOMAN WITH WORLD'S SMALLEST WAIST IS DEAD AT 31!



A THRILLED crowd watched the tiny waist of Margie Gleason during her birthday reception.

By BRITTANY CHAPMAN

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla. — Amazing Margie Gleason, whose 11-inch waist was the tiniest in the world, has been killed in a three-car crash near Monterey, Mexico.

The Oklahoma City secretary was visiting Mexico to celebrate her 31st birthday when she died in a collision that also took the lives of two friends, her family reports.

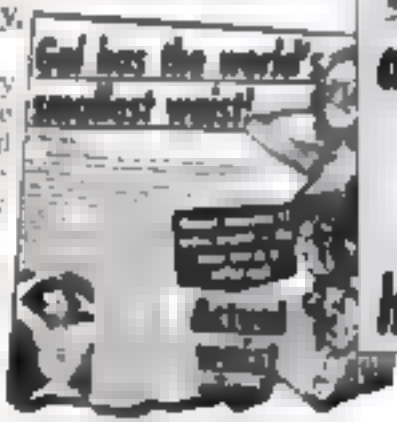
Miss Gleason made headlines in 1991 when Weekly World News reported that her teeny weeny waist, no bigger around than a coffee cup, was the smallest adult waist on record.

The previous record belonged to Ethel Granger, who measured in at 12 inches in 1933.

Strangely enough, the 4-foot-9, 128-pound hairdresser-turned-pinup said she had suffered from stale bread until she became an adult. When I was a child I weighed as much as 150 pounds and some of my friends still call me Fat Margie," she said in a 1991 interview.

The way I am today I have a back on a size 5 and clothes that fit, but still I'd rather be skinny than fat any day."

Miss Gleason is survived by her parents, a brother and two sisters.



WEEKLY WORLD NEWS first reported on the gal with the tiniest waist in the Dec. 31, 1991 issue

ART GALLERY TRICKS GALS TO POSE — WHILE SITTING ON BATHROOM 'THRONE'

OSAKA, Japan — A furious art lover has filed a $1.5 million lawsuit against a gallery here for "inflicting emotional distress" — after she was tricked into dropping her pants!

Miss Atsuko Nakajima, 31, was at the gallery to view the works of famed avant garde artist Hiro Sawaki when she took a seat — unaware that she was participating in a piece of "performance art" titled Woman on a Throne and that dozens of fellow gallery visitors were gawking at her through a one-way mirror!

Beauty beats mom to death and goes free

. . . because she had PMS!

PRETTY Anna Reynolds, right, was only 16 years old when she clubbed her mother to death with a hammer. Below, Anna talks all on an interview with a British newspaper

Anna Reynolds attacked her mom and beat her to death with a hammer, but authorities let her off scot-free — because she was suffering from premenstrual syndrome!

Now the 27-year-old redhead has written a spine-chilling book entitled Tightrope, in which she warns other PMS sufferers that hormonal imbalances before their periods could lead them to kill, too.

The convicted murderess says she had suffered from bouts of depression for years before the fateful day she took her mother's life.

"For 10 days each month I could hardly go out. I was so depressed," she recalls. "I had to think those dreadful days out. I saw doctors galore but they couldn't help. Eventually I came to the conclusion that the way I behaved was the way I was.

"Someone should have spotted what was wrong with me. I realize now I wasn't mentally ill when I did what I did — I was physically ill."

After several suicide attempts, Anna got pregnant and gave birth to a baby boy whom she gave up for adoption. In the upsetting aftermath of the baby's birth, she continued to live with her 41-year-old mother Elizabeth that she'd had a child out of wedlock.

From then on, her widowed mom harassed her daily, raging at her that she had wanted

Finally, Anna's battered heart became too great. Suffering from hormone-induced mood swings, she exploded in fury — and bludgeoned her mother to death as she lay in bed.

"I was going crazy," she says. "I couldn't sleep any more. I hit her over and over again."

The Brackley, England, woman was arrested, tried and given a life sentence for murder. But 14 months later she was freed on grounds she was suffering from PMS and post-partum depression at the time of the killing.

And after nine months of treatment, Anna's hormonal imbalance was finally corrected.

Today she writes for a wild life magazine and lives a healthy, happy life. But she don't wake up and think about necessary at what she did to her mother will always haunt her.

BEAT HEADACHE PAIN WITH EASY MENTAL TRICK!

A new medical study shows that a simple mental exercise for wiping out headaches really works — by triggering actual physical changes in the body to eliminate headache pain.

Until now doctors weren't certain why the exercise — consisting of warming the hands through thought — brought relief. But now California researchers have discovered that it causes variations in blood flow and slows down the body's nervous system. The scientists were able to measure an increased blood flow to the hands, and a corresponding decrease in flow to the scalp, when a person concentrated on warming his hands.

These changes reduced nervous activity throughout the entire body — and this eliminated the person's headache. The much nervous activity is believed to be related to migraines, experts pointed out.

Several hundred headache sufferers who've mastered the exercise — called the "warm hands" technique — were studied by researchers. The scientists found that about 10 percent of the patients experienced relief.

Similar success was reported by Dr. Ian Wickram, who has trained over 500 patients to use the exercise.

The technique is simple to learn. All you need is a small room thermometer.

Remove the bulb from its cardboard backing and then tape it to the pad of your index finger.

"Repeat phrases like, 'My hands are warm, I can feel the warmth in my hands,'" said biofeedback expert Alyce Green.

"You can think of images like holding your hands by a warm fire or holding a hot boiled egg. If you increase your hand temperature by a degree or two, it means you're increasing the blood flow to your hands — and relaxing your nervous system."

Start doing the exercise as soon as you feel a headache coming on, say experts.

In the beginning you should practice it for 15 to 20 minutes daily. Soon you'll be able to warm your hands without using the thermometer.

The experts said that if you

Midnight rider Paul Revere was also a dentist!

Few Americans realize that Revolutionary War hero Paul Revere, whose famous midnight ride alerted our forefathers of the British invasion, was a first-class dentist!

Revere's contributions to dentistry have been overshadowed by his patriotic deed, reports Total History magazine in its summer issue. But he created and manufactured dental plates that were years ahead of his time.

He was also a creative silversmith who made wonderful silver bowls and did fine engraving.

About the only things a young rider will share with Midnight are contagious skin diseases and family secrets.

HONEYMOON HORROR!

COUPLE MANGLED WHEN HIS SEX IMPLANT EXPLODES!

LOS ANGELES — A middle-aged man and his bride were seriously injured while having sex on their wedding night — when his penile implant exploded!

"It's going to take a lot of reconstructive surgery to put them back together again," said Dr. Ralph [illegible], a urologist who is treating the couple, Mike and Paula Cartamin.

"Their genitals have been severely damaged."

Dr. DeLouka said he had warned Cartamin to delay his wedding or at least refrain from intercourse on his honeymoon because of the [illegible] implant. But Cartamin disregarded the warning.

Cartamin, 42, had suffered a groin injury four years ago that left him unable to perform sexually. He finally decided to have penile implant surgery six months ago.

By KELLY FRANCIS
Weekly World News

The implant gradually became bent because it was about an inch too long. Cartamin complained to the surgeon who performed the surgery.

But the surgeon, whose name is being withheld pending legal action, told Cartamin he could replace the implant — [illegible] $4,000.

UROLOGIST: Dr. Ralph DeLouka

Cartamin did not have the money.

Desperate, Cartamin consulted Dr DeLouka.

"I said, 'My God, man, you've got to do something about the implant,'" says Dr DeLouka. "My worst fear was that the implant would explode during intercourse."

Cartamin went ahead with his wedding but promised to abide by Dr DeLouka's warning to postpone having sex.

"I meant to keep that promise, but I couldn't resist," says Cartamin.

Dr. DeLouka explains: "When Mr Cartamin pressed the base of his penile to send fluid through the implanted cylinders on both sides, it caused fluid to build up at the joint where the metal cylinders curved, and the pressure exploded the implant.

"You have too much air than a balloon and it will explode from the pressure. That, in effect, is what happened to the implant."

Dr DeLouka has called in a team of specialists to try to repair the damage to the nerve-tissue.

But the prognosis isn't good.

"We should have waited but we just couldn't," said injured wife Paula Cartamin from her hospital bed.

"Sex is supposed to be enjoyable, an act of ecstasy. We surely don't expect to explode."

TERRIBLE [illegible] OF ROYAL PAINS!

The bed-bopping antics of Prince Charles and Princess Di are nothing compared to the outrageous doings of other royals throughout history, a new documentary reveals.

Many monarchs have been bloodthirsty killers and nuts, according to Royal Secrets, which aired recently on the Learning Channel.

Selected the deadliest despots:

- England's Queen Isabella had her husband King Edward II murdered — by having a hot poker thrust up his rectum!
- King Henry III of France was a homosexual transvestite who had his male lovers dressed as women.
- Peter the Great of Russia had an unusual hobby. He collected human "freaks" — and tortured them!
- Driven insane by syphilis, Spain's Charles II enjoyed opening the coffins of his ancestors to peek inside.
- Prince Vlad of Transylvania, nicknamed Vlad the Impaler, had a favorite way of dispatching enemies: cooking up a unique way of killing a little one either. He would impale them by slaughtering all 2,700 residents of a town — sometimes removing ribs from the torsos of his victims when they were still alive.

WIFE OFFERS $60,000 REWARD FOR RETURN OF RUNAWAY HUBBY —

DEAD OR ALIVE!

By JOE BERGER / Weekly World News

SYDNEY, Australia — Potbellied blowhard Cal Nashie was a cigar-chomping chiseler who slashed down cheap scotch all day and lusted after the ladies all night while his weary wife Amy scrubbed floors to support their family.

But when cringey Cal ran away with a blonde bar-maid and left his family high and dry, fed-up Amy flew into a rage and offered a $60,000 reward for his return — dead or alive!

And the outraged lady says the bounty still stands, even though cops have warned her she could be in a world of trouble if someone takes her up on the shocking offer.

'The creep cleaned out our bank account & ran off with a barmaid!'

"I'm really not worried about what's going to happen to me at this point," hissed the scorned scrub woman. "I just want to get my hands on that scumbag husband of mine, and frankly I don't care if they bring him in kicking and screaming or just toss the dead body on my door step.

"Either way, they'll get their money — I promise that. The bum didn't leave me a thing but the house we live in, but I'm prepared to give that up to pay the reward. That's how serious I am about all this."

Callous Cal, 34, had spent years lording and lording it over Amy's back before finally slipping town with a curvaceous waitress on his 17th wedding anniversary.

But patient Amy didn't hit the roof till she learned her high-rolling hubby had forged her name at the bank and hit the road with their entire life savings.

"I put up with his boozing and cheating for all the time because I thought underneath it all he really loved me and the kids," the miffed mother of two told a reporter.

"But when I learned he'd cleaned out our measly savings and left us with

So infuriated Amy, 32, put up wanted posters all over Sydney and took out classified ads in newspapers across Europe and Australia, inviting bounty hunters to take a bead on her heart less hubby.

"I don't know if he's skipped the country or what," said the hopping-mad maid. "All I know is I want the fat slimeball back — dead or alive."

Brain-dead dimwits flying high on college campuses!

New 'smart' drug turns flunking students into rocket scientists!

An amazing new drug that has the incredible power to make dumb students smart is sweeping college campuses nationwide!

Simply by getting an injection of the drug five hours before taking a big exam, below average students are able to outperform even the smartest kids in their class.

The only drawback is the drug's effect is temporary. Once it wears off, the students are dumber than ever, just like ditzy Molly Brandy on Married With Children and under achiever Bart Simpson of The Simpsons.

"This stuff is incredible," said one student from an Ivy League college who wished to remain anonymous.

"My parents are thrilled with how much my grades improved last year. Of course I'm not sure how happy they'd be if they knew it was because of a drug."

The incredible "smart" drug, which is being smuggled into the U.S. from Japan, is being sold on the black market at prices ranging from $200 to $500 a shot.

The longer you want it to last, the more you pay. A $200 shot lasts about one-and-one half hours while a $500 shot can last up to five hours.

Scientists who have been studying the illegal substance believe it works by activating both sides of a person's brain, allowing the user to better tap into hidden memory banks.

In tests the researchers are conducting on students of average and below average intelligence, they discovered:

● A male student who knew only a small sprinkling of Latin scored an incredible 99.9 percentile on his midterm exam.

● A female student who was struggling through calculus and trigonometry whizzed through her final exams in record time.

● An entire group of freshman engineering students went from the bottom of the top of their physics class after taking injections of the drug.

QUEEN OF STUPID: Sally Brandy

With the start of the new school term less than two months away, universally bigwigs are worried the drug will become so widespread students will be able to get through college without really learning anything.

"I'm not sure what we can do to prevent the drug's use," said one official. "It seems the only way would be to give surprise exams to students won't have to take an injection before class."

Bodybuilding contest turns into strip show!

MAGDEBURG, Germany — An international men's bodybuilders competition was ruined when women in the audience started yelling for the contestants to take off their skimpy trunks — and three guys did it!

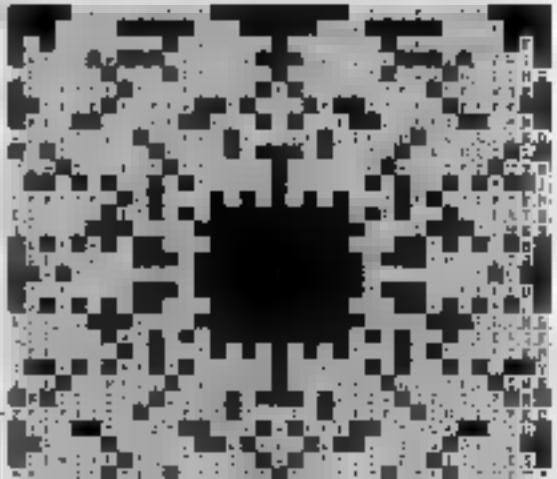
"Our competition is no place for this sort of propagandous behavior," said a furious official, who disqualified the naked competitors and abruptly canceled the remainder of the contest.

Here's how NOT to get a job

Never tell truth about your former employer when you're on a job interview!

That's the word from a leading personnel expert who says folks who tell the truth about how miserable they were on their old jobs give the impression they are "troublemakers."

CROSSWORD PUZZLE SOLUTION



AMERICA'S HOTTEST NEW WITCH SAYS,

JUST GAZE INTO I'LL MAKE YOUR COME TRUE

America's hottest new witch can help you find health, wealth, romance and happiness! All you have to do to get them is gaze into her eyes and follow the simple instructions in one of the four boxes at right.

If you're serious about improving your life, Anjelica guarantees success — and her services are absolutely free.

"The powers I possess are a wondrous gift from God and I wouldn't dream of charging anyone for my help," said the gorgeous 38-year-old witch. "If you need money, if you need love or good health, just look into my eyes.

"Together we will channel the mysterious powers and energies that flow through each and every one of us. And together we will change your life for the better — forever."

Anjelica was born and raised in Romania but was forced to flee to the United States after the collapse of the country's communist government in 1991.

Her clients included some of the richest and most powerful people in Europe. And even though she lost everything when her homeland collapsed — and had just $5 to her name when she arrived in New York — she quickly won several lottery jackpots and made her a multi-millionaire.

Now, the beautiful witch has devoted her life to improving the lives of others.

To get the help you need, follow the simple guidelines below.

If you want money, for example, find the box that's headlined "Wealth" and follow the instructions to the letter. Anjelica invites you to seek as much help as you need — but you should never focus on more than one category in a given week.

If you ask for "Happiness" this week, wait a week before asking for "Health" or "Wealth" and so on.

"You don't have to worry about your wishes coming true because your success is a foregone conclusion," she said. "All I ask in return is that you pass my picture on to a friend after you get what you want.

Jet pilot's blockbuster:

The pilot of a Boeing 727 airliner was ordered to change course to investigate a "tremendously bright" UFO spotted by an air traffic controller over the Canary Islands!

And the pilot, Capt. Adolfo Morales, said the UFO was visible to him and his crew for an incredible 22 minutes as it tailed the Iberia Airlines jetliner during the gripping incident.

"It followed our flight path, going up when we went up and down when we went down," said Capt. Morales, a 15-year air veteran.

"Then, without warning, it suddenly moved at incredible speed to the right and stopped dead over the town of Santa Cruz on the island of Tenerife.

"It covered the distance, approximately 140 miles in less than one-and-one-half seconds. It hovered there, shining with a brilliant light, then changed color to red and then violet as it started to descend. Finally it disappeared past the island, possibly into the sea.

"The UFO was seen by all members of my crew. Even the stewardesses came into the cockpit to see it. It was in sight for a total of 22 minutes."

Capt. Morales said he had been instructed by the air control tower at Arrecife in the Canary Islands to detour closer to the town and check out the light which was hovering over it. The traffic controller on duty that night, Antonio Perez, confirmed that he had given the order after spotting the light. Perez said: "It was tremendously bright. I've never seen a light like it before.

The air force called me the following day and asked me for details. I told them exactly what happened."

The bizarre UFO was also seen by Arrecife Police Sgt. Jose Munoz. He recalled: "I was with three other officers in a patrol car when I spotted the round ball of light hovering over a mountain north of Arrecife. All we could see was the light. It was too bright to make out any shape. We were all completely mystified. It was like nothing we had ever seen in the sky.

"As we were watching, it suddenly sped southwest and stopped over Yaiza, a town about 20 miles away. We were stunned. It traveled faster than any jet plane, then stopped dead in the air."

ARIES
Mar. 21 – Apr. 19

Beware. A minor disagreement and a friend or loved one could take offense this week if you don't keep your stubbornness in check. Force yourself to compromise to keep the peace.

A misadventure involving credit could bring unexpected financial trouble.

Spruce up your wardrobe. Someone special has his or her eye on you, and good grooming is especially important.

TAURUS
Apr. 20 – May 20

A secret dream could come true in a most unexpected way. If you plan your words right now, and in the near future.

Don't dismiss anybody's advice without giving it due consideration.

Rest is important this week. Pitch in at work, could make a serious mistake.

Something green could bring you luck.

GEMINI
May 21 – June 20

Your financial opportunity could be just around the corner. Unusual gains may be in the offing if you keep a clear head.

A friend or relative badly needs your help. Don't let him or her down.

Do something adventurous this week. It will brighten your outlook on life — and could bring romantic rewards as well.

A hunch could pay off handsomely.

CANCER
June 21 – July 22

You may get a very important personal call that you get back this week. You could be on for a bit. This is a good time to work hard — and keep your mouth shut.

What seems like an inconsequential phone call could hold the key to opportunities. Pay attention.

Good things come in small packages.

Your lucky numbers are ... and ...

LEO
July 23 – Aug. 22

Your energy and charm are at an all-time high this week, making now is the time to tackle that project that's been hanging over your head for weeks. Get it done then reward yourself by splurging a bit on a little luxury.

A friend in need is one of the best kind of friend to have.

A small gamble could pay big dividends.

VIRGO
Aug. 23 – Sept. 22

Hang on. Virgo people begin an exciting week that could plunge you into a life of nightmare walking nightmare. This is the stuff movies are made of, but believe it's true, you'll probably be ready to return to a life of TV and tuna sandwiches.

Pay close attention to dreams about pets and cars. There's an important message there. Numbers 3 and 14 should bring good fortune.

LIBRA
Sept. 23 – Oct. 22

You've done your time in the salt mine, Libra, so this is your week to have some fun. Maybe you'll have a ball — and when the ball comes you'll come with a great big smile.

You pay a visit to relatives. A big, green car could come into trouble on the road or a pick where you're going.

A secret pact between friends could bring new joy to your life.

Your lucky numbers are ... and ...

SCORPIO
Oct. 23 – Nov. 21

A situation that seems tense early in the week could turn around dramatically by week's end, leaving you all the better for it. Take advantage of the good luck that comes your way.

A friend in need can be a powerful ally. Be sure to return the favor when he or she needs it.

Something shiny and silver could help make a dream come true.

SAGITTARIUS
Nov. 22 – Dec. 21

Keep an open mind to all offers this week, no matter how kooky they sound at first. An opportunity to achieve financial success comes from a most unusual source.

You should be bursting with energy and love, but be careful not to let others take advantage by finishing their duties for you.

A lucky day could bring some heavy-petting sunshine into your life.

CAPRICORN
Dec. 22 – Jan. 19

You can resolve problems at work and home this week by relying on your instincts. Spend extra time to get your thoughts in order before you attempt to communicate. Be more than a plan.

A magazine or newspaper could bring you some sensitive, beautiful, but those who are attached could because of being supporting previously.

A dream provides a dramatic solution to a nagging problem.

AQUARIUS
Jan. 20 – Feb. 18

Put your thinking cap on this week — because the solution is simple. Also a problem could be a powerful ally by the way. The test is waiting for you hard to grasp, to grasp it and hold on tight.

Your childishness could cause problems with someone in authority, so watch your step. Flirtatiousness could be dangerous now.

Someone you thought has forgotten is going to be in town soon.

PISCES
Feb. 19 – Mar. 20

Follow a creative idea this week and you may be surprised at where it leads. Trust your instincts and don't worry about what anyone else might think.

Be alert to sudden changes in attitudes and actions. Let others know you won't stand by and let them undermine your position.

Something blue and white could bring good luck.

Your favorite game reveals your secret personality!

By JUNE SAWYER / Weekly World News

If you enjoy solitaire, you're probably slightly superstitious, very self-confident, extremely intuitive and like to stay busy.

That's the assessment of Dr. Ernest Dichter, a top psychologist.

"All games are replicas of life," notes Dr. Dichter. "And the type of game you prefer to play reveals a lot about the type of person you are."

Here, into the depths, are some other fascinating examples:

BOARD GAMES — People who prefer Monopoly, backgammon, chess and other board games are social individuals who enjoy trying to outmaneuver others.

They like controlling their environment and don't get frustrated when fate forces them to change their plans.

BOWLING — If you love to bowl, you're probably an easygoing, sociable and conservative person. You're likely to be competitive, but not in an aggressive way.

GOLF — Golfers are usually outgoing, organized people who don't like to lose but love fair play.

They are aggressive and possess the ability to concentrate.

COMPETITIVE CARD GAMES — If you enjoy bridge, gin rummy, poker and other card games, you probably have a tight circle of friends to whom you are very loyal. You're a creature of habit who doesn't really welcome change.

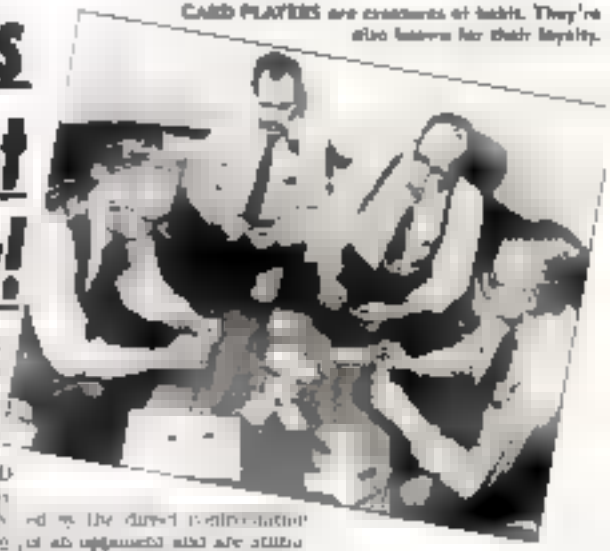
TENNIS — People who love tennis are very competitive extroverts who enjoy the limelight. They are exhibitionists and like the direct confrontation of an opponent and are stimulated by trying to anticipate actions and words of others.

CROSSWORD PUZZLES — If doing crossword puzzles is your favorite way of passing time, you're a self-assured person who enjoys mental stimulation.

You're more interested in self-esteem than praise from others.

PINBALL GAMES — If you enjoy matching your skill against a pinball machine, you're probably a born gambler. You're an optimist who believes anyone can make it in life with a little skill and luck.

CHESS PLAYERS are cool customers.



CARD PLAYERS are creatures of habit. They're also known for their loyalty.

Bizarre disease makes victims jump out windows — because they think they're on fire!

FIRE FRENZY: Afflicted people are convinced that they are engulfed in flames.

By KATHY ROSS / Weekly World News

Frenzied shrieks of madness filled the air. One man leaped from his window, hysterically screaming he was a jet plane. A 68-year-old woman plunged three floors from her hospital room to the streets below to escape the flames that were engulfing her.

As the mad sickness spread through the little French town of Pont-St-Esprit, more people tried to destroy themselves. One, a barge sailor, cried out: "My head is on fire! There are snakes in my belly!"

The year was 1951 — the date of the most recent outbreak in modern times of the horrifying disease that is called ergotism.

The affliction causes some victims to suffer from excruciating convulsions, wild hallucinations, severe heartburn, or sometimes, a sensation of being burned alive. Many victims go blind or insane. Many die. And there is no cure.

In some victims, gangrene develops, becoming so severe that limbs actually drop off.

Another NEWS health exclusive!

The cause of ergotism is the poisonous fungus ergot, which under certain conditions infests rye or wheat crops. When the grain is ground into flour and made into bread, thousands may fall victim to ergotism.

During the Middle Ages, there were plagues of ergotism and in the 18th century there were outbreaks in Europe, when entire towns suffered agonies.

The disease was widely known as St. Anthony's fire, because prayers to St. Anthony were believed to be the only way to obtain relief from the burning pains it caused.

Today, modern grain preparation methods have virtually eliminated ergotism as a problem in modern medicine. A derivative, ergotamine, is used after childbirth to prevent bleeding.

Ergotamine and another drug that's made from ergot, methysergide, are also used to treat severe migraine headaches. And in 1943 a scientist accidentally ingested another chemical made from ergot and began to hallucinate.

He had stumbled upon one of the most powerful mind-bending drugs ever known, lysergic acid diethylamide, otherwise known as LSD.

Twister sucks woman 800 feet high into the air — for 12 terrifying minutes!

Mom survives 11 tornado

By GON KRAUSE / Weekly World News

Rene Truta survived a 12-minute terror ride on the winds of a tornado that lifted her 800 feet into the sky and ripped out her hair before it run out of steam and dumped her on a creek bank — 11 miles away!

The 39-year-old woman lost an ear, broke an arm and suffered numerous cuts and bruises in the incident — reminiscent of scenes in the smash film, Twister — but both she and her doctors say it's a miracle she's alive.

MIRACLE MOM: Rene Truta lost an ear, broke an arm and suffered numerous cuts and bruises.

"Everything happened so fast it still feels like a dream," said Mrs. Truta, who was released from the hospital on May 28 and is now recuperating at home.

"One minute I was posing for a picture and the next minute I was off my feet and spinning around like clothes in a dryer.

"The noise was deafening, like a freight train, and I was powerless to do anything but let the wind carry me along. I didn't think I was dead — I knew I was dead. All I could do was pray."

The mind-twisting drama unfolded the second week in May when Mrs. Truta and her 41-year-old husband Jack heard a window-rattling crack of thunder and stepped outside their home near Norman, Okla., to view the approaching storm.

In the distance they saw a funnel cloud and decided to take a snapshot. And while they realized that the twister was dangerously close, they figured they had enough time to get the picture and return to the safety of their house.

"Our timing couldn't have been worse," said Mrs. Truta, scratching at the bandages that cover her now bald and heavily stubbed head. "After Jack took the picture I tried to run but the wind was too strong. I screamed just as the tornado lifted me off the ground.

"I was terrified, more so than I've ever been in my life. Dirt and debris were stinging me all over and I felt a sharp pain in my right ear.

"I was going up and around faster and faster and the Lord's Prayer came to mind. I started saying it and got to the part about forgiveness.

"Then I passed out."

Three minutes later Mrs. Truta woke up on a creek bank and staggered up a hill 11 miles from her home. Once on top she could see a 200-foot swath of devastation stretching out for miles.

A rescue team found the badly bleeding woman about 35 minutes later. They rushed her to a hospital where she was treated for her wounds.

Oddly enough, Jack Truta came through the ordeal without so much as a scratch.

When the twister sucked his wife into the sky he hit the dirt and clung to the trunk of a tree until the storm passed.

A police spokesman confirmed that the tornado's winds had been clocked at speeds approaching 275 m.p.h. but said fewer than a dozen people were hurt because the storm passed over a sparsely populated area.

Mrs. Truta said: "My doctors call me 'Miracle Lady' and I have to agree.

"I guess the Good Lord has plans for me."

Incredibly, the incident is not without precedent.

There have been numerous reports of tornadoes sucking people into the sky. In one of the most dramatic, 63 schoolchildren in Frankfurt, Germany, were carried 150 yards and dropped to the ground unharmed in 1984.

Bus accident leads to baby for frisky pair!

MARSEILLES, France — Citizens are cheering the birth of "Little Baby Smash-up" — conceived in a bus accident nine months ago.

The tot's parents, Marie Jubert, 23, and Roland Berthelot, 26, achieved notoriety when the crowded bus they were riding in struck a minivan and tipped over into a ditch last fall.

At the time the pair were total strangers, but during the 45 minutes they spent crushed together in the crumpled wreck, that changed.

"In the crash, Roland's pants fell," Marie told reporters at the time.

"As it happened, I had rushed out of the house that day neglecting to wear anything under my skirt, which rose up to the wreck. I suppose one thing just led to another."

The couple's racy antics were observed by other crash victims, and they were arrested
